A What each manipulation moves. Accuracy responds to whether the evidence is in the window and to nothing else; confidence responds to how much context is in the window and to nothing else — the two measures are driven by disjoint variables

